

Message in a bottle

Hello my name is Eik, and thank you, you found my message.

I'm 14 years old, and I live in London with my parents. I have always loved to play soccer, and I loved to dress me up really nice with my best friends from my school. I got a little brother, and a little sister back home at my parent's house. Our house is very small, but really cosy and charming. I'm having a big emotionally breakdown this time, because three months ago my father received a letter from the doctor – he was at the hospital for a lung check. He wouldn't open it at the first place, but he did, it was a call back from the doctor. When he came home from the doctor his face was grey, and he was crying. That part was the worst moment in my life. My father has cancer. In a while we all had a crying period, and especially me, cause me and my dad have always been the closest in the family, he saw all my football matches, he went shopping with me all day if I wanted to, but it's all changed now. He got one of the dangerous types of cancer. He could die any minute and now three months later all my live have chanced. Know in that three month period I start to get older friends, bad friends, I started to try other things than just alcohol, in the start cocaine was this big rush which made my brain, and body fly, and I felt a lot better. Then it became worse and now my life is a mess, I hate it. I wrote this message for you because I want you to know that you only got one life and it's to short to mess it up, if anything bad happens in your life then don't spoil it, keep on living the beautiful life. Right now my future dream is to get an education, I haven't bin in school for 2 and a half month, I can't even grasp school it's too hard. I want you to really enjoy what's left of your life, because my life is going down hill. Please do that for me.

Kind regards

Eik
